Recently Young Women of Excellence has been working on a variety of skills that teach them prosperity, wisdom, abundant strength, intelligence, love, hope and being authentic. Essentially, teaching them to be the best version of their self. They worked to earn funds through concession stand sales during the Sleepy Hollow basketball games and hosting a banquet. YWOE would also like to thank teacher at Reynolds for their support of our snack bar.

Creating Hope for kids.

Teachers, parents and caregivers can all play a role in identifying behavioral and emotional challenges in children, especially during these uncertain times. Together with Unison Health, we can help both kids and parents find a path to a more well-adjusted school experience, including coping with the stress of homework.

What are the signs of behavioral and emotional challenges in young people?

For children and teens, school is often where the signs of emotional and behavioral health challenges become apparent. Teachers may note that a child is inattentive, disrespectful of authorities, or engaging in disruptive behavior in the classroom. Students may have low energy or lack basic organizational skills. They may hit or bully other students, or act out in impulsive ways - or they may be victims of bullying themselves.

Parents and caregivers tend to recognize more subtle changes in a child's mood and activities. If a child seems isolated or withdrawn more than usual, is more easy distracted, or demonstrates changes in appetite, these could indicate a problem that goes beyond standard growing pains.

Of course, if a young person is demonstrating low self-esteem and engages in self-harm or talks about suicide, caregivers should seek medical attention immediately.

For children who face behavioral and emotional challenges, Unison Health offers school-based programming that can help improve students' performance both inside and outside of the classroom, while encouraging emotional self-control.

Programming follows Toledo Public Schools' calendar and is available five days per week, including therapy, case management or referrals to psychiatric services at one of Unison Health's locations, as necessary. Office-based services are also available when school is closed.

With nearly 50 years of experience, Unison Health is the community's recognized and preferred leader in caring for the integrated mental health and substance abuse needs of adults, children and adolescents. Ohio Medicaid and most private insurances accepted.

Please call if you have questions - or if you know someone who would benefit from our services.

Toledo Public Schools' Student Code of Conduct

Parents'/Guardians' Roles in Discipline

Consistency of rules and consequences is the key to maintaining a disciplined learning environment, and having the home and school working together is the best way to develop an atmosphere where the school runs smoothly and your child can best grow and develop intellectually and socially. When parents encourage appropriate behavior at home, students understand the importance and rewards of good conduct. You may want to review the Student Discipline Code with your child as an added way for your child to understand what is expected.
